Professional Development

Graduate Certificate in Education (Higher Education) for University staff and PhD students

For more than ten years the School of Education has run a successful professional development program for university teachers. In 2007, the program will consist of four 2-unit courses, taken part-time over one or two years. It includes study modules on curriculum design, student learning, teaching methods, using information and communication technologies, student assessment, and evaluation of teaching and courses. Participants conduct a project designed to enhance their own teaching. Many participants have subsequently won teaching awards and become leaders in curriculum and assessment change in their Schools and the University. The program is supported by the UQ Staff Development Committee which currently provides a half-bursary to UQ Staff to offset the full fee of $5,120 in 2007. The other half of the fee is usually covered by the staff member's school or faculty. For Australian PhD students enrolled at UQ, participation in the program has been encouraged by the Dean of Postgraduate Studies, whose approval is needed if the program is taken in conjunction with postgraduate research. A HECS fee is also applicable. In 2007, the University's fee calculator indicates the HECS fee is $399.20 for each 2-unit course up-front or $499.00 deferred. For international students, the fee is $2,060.00 per 2-unit course.

Applications

Applications are now being sought for 2007. An application form and additional details can be found at:

<http://www.uq.edu.au/education/index.html?page=7720&pid=7720>

Each course has a quota and applications will be processed in order of receipt.
